COUNT DOWN TO CHRISTMAS! For the next 19 days, Mrs Waterhouse will be picking someone to receive her 'Countdown to Christmas' selection box.

1st December goes to Ronnie Clewes in Year 7 -
"Ronnie is just beautiful. He is polite, well mannered and funny! Not only this, but he helps me every Tuesday on the astro collecting the footballs ready for the session. He is a superstar"

🎄Mrs Waterhouse's COUNTDOWN TO CHRISTMAS🎄
The 2nd of December Selection Box goes to Ruby Henderson in Year 11

"Ruby always works hard and is consistently dedicated to her learning, bettering herself every day. Yesterday, Ruby produced a 20 page (front and back!!) response in her English Literature Paper 2 Mock! She types that fast that she has had to have a MacBook because the iPad doesn't keep up with her touch typing! She impresses us every day but yesterday was just WOW. Mrs Melvin now has the pleasure of marking it! Well done Ruby"

🎄🎄Mrs Waterhouse's COUNTDOWN TO CHRISTMAS🎄🎄

Today, the December 3rd Selection Box goes to Molly Lucas Vernon in Year 7.

"Molly makes me smile every day with her politeness and her wonderful positivity but today she greeted me at the end of a very busy day to share her excitement at receiving her 150 Event Log badge from Mr Mackin. I was so proud of her and she really made me smile. Thanks Molly for ending my day on such a lovely note"

Rodrigo youngest to headline Glasto

Can music heal the world? As crowds gather in Somerset for the famous festival, many hope the performances will bring peace and calm in a time of crisis.

Sunday showstopper: Having made her Glastonbury debut on a side stage in 2022, Olivia Rodrigo will appear this year on Glastonbury's world famous main Pyramid Stage.*

Beyoncé. Adele. Jay-Z. Stormzy. Coldplay. David Bowie. Elton John. Bruce Springsteen. Paul McCartney. Just some of the famous names from pop, hip hop and rock who have headlined at Glastonbury.

This year the honour has fallen to Olivia Rodrigo, the American star beloved by Gen Z. At just 22 years old, she is the youngest ever musician to fill the Sunday slot on the Pyramid Stage — the highlight of the whole festival.[1]

Rodrigo first became famous as a Disney actor before the release of her debut single Drivers License in 2021. It broke streaming records and topped charts worldwide, while her debut album SOUR won three Grammy Awards. She is also celebrated for her live performances and outspoken views.

Nonetheless, festival fans are divided about the choice. According to critics, Rodrigo is neither old nor famous enough to headline the event. But others argue that she can unite music lovers of different ages, ethnicities and nationalities.

Music has a unique ability to create community. When people dance and sing together, it promotes empathy, trust and stress relief. The brain releases oxytocin — known as the "love hormone" — that helps them form positive social bonds and reduces feelings of insecurity and separation anxiety.[2]

Musicians can also build awareness of political causes through protest songs and charity concerts. In the 1980s, singer Bob Geldof organised a series of concerts to raise money for famine relief in Africa. He also released a single — "Do They Know It's Christmas?" — which, he claimed, "kept millions of people alive."[3]

But political activism by musicians has also been criticised as misguided or even harmful. For instance, rapper Fuse ODG argued that fundraising songs like Geldof's destroy the "dignity, pride and identity" of those they are meant to help.[4]

Others think that music should be kept free from politics and focused on entertainment. By speaking about contentious issues, pop and rock stars risk alienating fans who do not hold the same views. Rather than bringing people together, they make political divides even deeper.

The music industry is also a business, where profits and popularity matter more than peace. This can be seen at an event like Glastonbury, which hosts 210,000 visitors a day. In 2023, Glastonbury was streamed 50.3 million times on the BBC, with the live TV audience peaking at 7.6 million — a new record for the event.[5]

But critics question whether Glastonbury is really for everybody. In 2025 tickets cost £378.50, a 50.6% rise in six years.[6] Some fans think the event only caters for wealthy people, while others argue that it has betrayed its roots in the free festival movement of the 1960s.

The gates at Glastonbury opened on Wednesday. The forecast is warm and the revellers have started arriving. Music may not be able to cure the world's problems, but it can turn a scattering of tents into a community and teach thousands of strangers to sing with one voice.

Can music heal the world?

Linguist Of The Month

I like taking languages because in the future I would really love to travel a lot and meet and be able to understand people from all over the world.

I want to be able to relate to people when I visit different countries and be able to experience all the different cultures across the globe, my first language is Portuguese, so being able to learn more languages makes me feel closer to home.

For me, being able to understand and learn different languages it isn't just about being able to speak it, it's also about being able to understand how they do things differently to us, and how they interact differently with each-other. I would like to keep learning languages in the future, my goal is to be able to speak at least 5 languages.

I really enjoy studying languages, I also take time at home to watch films/series in different languages, to help me understand better and understand a lot quicker.

Solidarity	Solidarity is the unity, support and mutual responsibility shared among individuals or groups that have a common interest, struggle or purpose. The principles of solidarity include standing together with others, sharing resources and risks, acting collectively to achieve a common goal and recognising interdependence- that being the idea that people's well-being is connected.	The term 'solidarity' is commonly seen in sociology and other social sciences when considering social movements, political movements and class struggles. It is also widely used in philosophy and bioethics. It is a significant theme in the teachings of the Catholic church and features commonly in other religions. While similar to the concept of charity, solidarity can be distinguished from the former as it is generally aimed at changing whole systems rather than helping individuals.

Great Solidarity Movements of the 20th Century

1903-1914: British Suffragette Movement
A militant political movement championed by British women. Their campaign included protests, marches and direct action aiming to put pressure on the political elite. It ultimately led to women being granted the right to vote in 1918.

1939-1945: British Home Front During World War Two
British citizens participated in rationing, evacuation efforts and volunteer work to support the war effort. Air Raid Precaution teams, fire watchers and local committees fostered mutual aid within communities. Patriotic spirit and unity amid shared hardship strengthened national cohesion and social solidarity in difficult times.

1950s-1960s: US Civil Rights Movement
Black Americans and white allies organised sit-ins, marches and demonstrations to challenge racial segregation in the US. Martin Luther King and Malcolm X became key leaders of the movement with their powerful speeches. Their efforts led to landmark reforms such as the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the end to segregation of public spaces based on race.

Solidarity: Suffragettes, Home Front, US Civil rights & German reunification

1950s-1992: Anti-Apartheid Movement in South Africa
Black South Africans resisted apartheid rule through strikes, protests and underground activity. The movement gathered global allies including foreign governments. This international solidarity amplified local resistance, ultimately leading to the end of apartheid in 1992. Nelson Mandela became South Africa's first black president in 1994.

1980s-1990: German Reunification Movement
Through the 80s, East German citizens increasingly protested against political repression, economic stagnation and lack of freedom in the GDR. The pressure eventually led to the Peaceful Revolution and fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989. Solidarity between East and West Germans and international support led to the unification of Germany in 1990.
